ABOUT THIS COFFEE

The Santa Teresa farm is part of the Consorcio Social del Café Mexicano and has established itself as a production unit focused on quality, sustainability, and continuous improvement. Its location in the buffer zones of the El Triunfo Biosphere Reserve offers privileged climatic conditions, fundamental for the production of high-altitude coffees with complex and balanced profiles.

The farm spans 300 hectares, with more than half entirely dedicated to natural conservation — a balance between production and preservation that reflects a long-term vision where coffee quality is inseparable from the health of the surrounding ecosystems.

What makes Santa Teresa unique is its integration of technological innovation and environmental management within a coherent production model. The farm is divided into 12 plots for maximum traceability and agronomic control. Drones and bio-inputs are used to optimize crop management.
