ABOUT THIS COFFEE

Who they are: A two-partner farm established in 1997 in Santa Clara, Renacimiento — one of Panama's most recognized coffee-producing zones, surrounded by mountains, water sources, and wild fauna, near the La Amistad International Park. Since its founding, Finca Santa Teresa has received multiple recognitions for production quality and has consistently aimed at the most demanding specialty markets.

Brief history: The farm covers 96 total hectares, with 65 dedicated to coffee, at altitudes between 1,300 and 1,550 masl. The region of Santa Clara is known for its fertile soils and has produced several internationally award-winning farms. In 2020, during the pandemic, the farm faced severe landslides caused by intense rains — a difficult moment they navigated while continuing to improve. Since 2024, the team has made a deliberate decision to rest the soil across the entire farm, allowing organic matter to regenerate, while also investing in new equipment, better technology, and varietal improvement — all aimed at increasing both volume and quality in the years ahead.
